MEETINGS · CONFERENCE ROOMS AND ZOOM

Talk to the person, not the interpreter

The interpreter is a bridge. Your coworker is the conversation.

Learn · Practice · Connect

asltoolkit.com

Say “you”

Eye contact stays on the Deaf person.

Don't side-talk

Looking only at the interpreter cuts them out.

Leave a beat

Visual language needs a second to land.

Where the interpreter sits

Next to the speaker, a little back, so one glance catches both faces. Never put them across the room or behind the Deaf person.